School guide to Report Remove

How a pupil under 18 can ask for a nude or sexual image of them online to be assessed for removal, and the school's role around it.

> Report Remove is run by Childline and the Internet Watch Foundation (IWF). This is an independent educational guide to it — not an NSPCC, Childline or IWF publication.

What it is

A young person under 18 in the UK can report a nude or sexual image or video of themselves that is online — including AI-made or altered imagery — so the IWF can assess it and work to have it removed. The pupil signs in or creates a Childline account at childline.org.uk (search "Report Remove") and gets updates in their Childline locker.

! Removal is not guaranteed and timing varies. It cannot reach encrypted apps such as WhatsApp, or files stored only on a device.

The school's role

- ✓ tell the DSL first — the DSL decides with the pupil, and a parent or carer where safe, whether and when to use it
- ✓ the pupil reports through their own Childline account on their own device, with a trusted adult's support where needed
- ✓ record that Report Remove was discussed — removal is one strand of the safeguarding response, not the whole of it
- ✗ the adult never views, handles or uploads the image
- ✗ staff never make the report for the pupil, or use a school device or account
